 - # Why Lylli?

Make it stand out! On Asana's website, there's a page titled "Why Asana?". A variation of this for Lylli would help separate the brand from other project management software. The demo already listed in the menu is great but hiding it under a navigation category lessens its appeal.

Graphics

Animated graphics are an excellent way to give people an immediate and tangible idea of what they'll be getting from the service provided. Lylli's homepage would be even more engaging with demonstrative graphics (or static illustrations, like those seen on adsasd

Compare and Contrast Against Competitors

At the bottom of ClickUp's homepage, there's a "Compare" section, where the company's competitors are listed (i.e., "ClickUp vs Asana"). This direct comparison tool could be useful for Lylli—addressing the differences between Lylli and other project management solutions. Let's show what makes Lylli special!

Colorful

No need to go crazy, but embracing the shades of blue seen in the logo would strengthen the eye-catching nature of Lylli's homepage. The site's calm aesthetic can be preserved; it's a balance. Blue also doesn't seem to be a "taken" competitor color, so this may help with distinct marketing.

App Integration

App integration seems to be a popular feature amongst competitors. Lylli doesn't appear to provide this service yet; it might be beneficial to consider adding or more directly advertising something similar.

Customer Stories

Dedicating a space for Lylli's happy customers to share what specifically they liked about it could help potential clients get an idea of what sets Lylli apart. "Happy Customers" looks great on the home screen; a whole page full of reviews would be even better.

Chatbot

A few of Lylli's competitors have a chatbot available on their homepage, including Asana and Cascade. This can help users feel as though they can easily make inquiries and clear up any confusion. It wouldn't be a bad idea to add this feature to Lylli's website as well!

Notes on General Design and Layout

- Lylli's top-left logo should be larger on desktop and mobile view, so that clients can read the text below the brand name.
- “Happy clients” and “Happy customers” sections overlap (one is indicating brands and the other shows individuals; maybe change the wording so they don't both say “happy _____”)
- The “values” section has a couple minor punctuation errors, but that's just me being nit-picky.

Final Thoughts

- Prioritize ease of use – this software isn't supposed to be for tech wizards (this could mean a non-complicated chat bot and/or FAQ)
- Lylli is unique in its focus on pharma and medical business; own that and provide specific services for it (maybe even get reviews from clients who used Lylli for said purpose)
